

NORTH AUSTRALIAN ABORIGINAL JUSTICE AGENCY

MEDIA RELEASE

Thursday 14th May, 2009

New NAAJA website

The North Australian Aboriginal Justice Agency (NAAJA) today officially launched its new website www.naaja.org.au

“The updated website provides important and useful information,” NAAJA Chairman, Mr Norman George said.

“We will constantly be revising and adding to the site so it remains relevant and practical.

“Being aware of the difficulties a lot of people have accessing computers and the internet, we’ve included posters, community educational material and information like Bush Court Dates that can be printed off and placed on notice boards.

“NAAJA is very proud of our work providing culturally appropriate legal assistance to Aboriginal Territorians across the Top End.

“Major policy documents and submissions are also available on the new site as well as contact details for clients and useful legal links for the general public.

“We hope users find it helpful and informative,” Mr George said.
